Follow the cork grain!

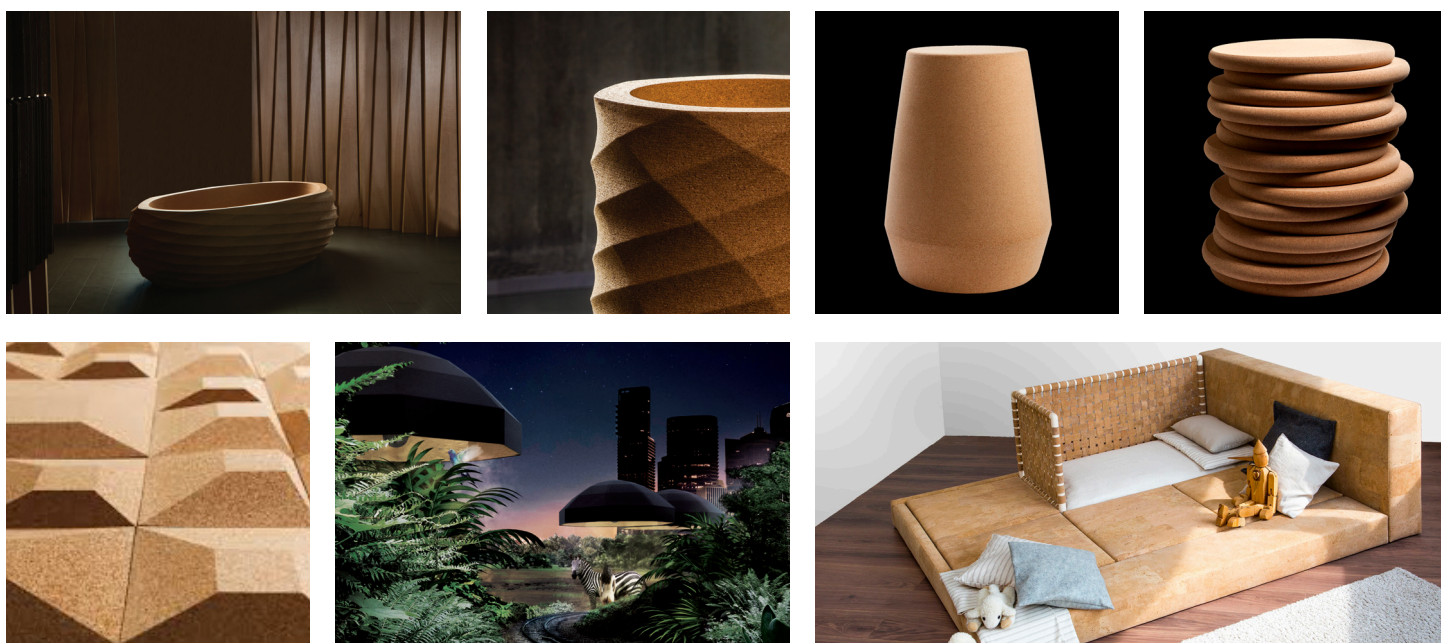

Milan, April 2017

Cork design and excellent live music at the FuoriSalone events organised by Granorte.

The Portuguese company makes surprising products that highlight cork's most unexpected qualities. A bathtub as cosy as a nutshell. Textured rugs and curtains. A sleep system "from small to big bed". Stools with a soft warm touch. Wall panels like Rothko paintings.

Among its installations is the "Nomadic Bookstore" project – made by Diploma AA15, Architectural Association School of Architecture London for the publisher Lars Müller: a temporary bookstore that could double as a cocktail bar in the evening and closes like a box. Or "Jungle Bells", an installation of soundproof cupolas – made of cork and hemp – to insulate interiors, lectures, concerts. Or simply for listening to silence.

And again: floors and facings in natural and coloured cork and a choice of printed motifs. Like those chosen by Makio Hasuike & Co. for the Kundalini stand at Euroluca.
